WHILE MALACANANG and its advisers are debating timetables, the military is wasting no time trying to get the job done.

Three Army battalions from the western Mindanao province arrived at Camp Nolas in Zambo City for deployment to areas in Luzon where they will battle, not to battle rebels, but guerrillas of the communist New People's Army.

Lt. Gen. Pedro Calixto Jr., Southern Luzon Command chief, awarded the battle transport when he welcomed the Mindanao warriors to his camp.

"Let us show how we are all eager to crush the enemy in two years as ordered by President Macapagal-Arroyo. And we will do it," Calixto told the soldiers.

"This last group year has been too long. Its many lives have been lost and injured. It affects our economy. We have to end all this for the sake of the country and our people."

At Sangley Point in nearby Cavite, Armed Forces Chief of Staff, Gen. Genaro Garcia Sr.,

meets to coordinate the mission when he awarded the graduation ceremonies for 21 members of the Navy SEALs, an elite anti-air and whose specialty is unconventional warfare.

The unit, trained in planning explosives and staging commando raids, is due to be thrown into the battle with the NPA.

"The President has given us a mission. We will try to accomplish that during the time frame," Garcia said.

Negotiated PNP deals defended

By Luigi A. del Puerto

THE PHILIPPINE NATIONAL Police top brass yesterday defended the decision to dispense with a public bidding in the acquisition of some P222 million worth of patrol cars, handcuffs and motorcycles, saying it was advantageous to the government.

The police even saved roughly P56 million from those purchases, top PNP officials said.

Also coming to the PNP's defense, Interior Secretary Ronaldito

Pera said that setting the reasons officials opted for a "negotiated procurement" or "direct contracting" was standardization.

Pera said a public bidding might not help in the standard-

WHEN BENIGNO AQUINO JR. returned in 1986 as president with the director Ferdinand Marcos, declaring that "is part with the devil is no part at all," he became a refugee in the United States.

The foremost political prisoner of the martial law regime, Aquino had been allowed to undergo brief stays in Boston. He had promised to return soon after that, but decided to remain there.

Three years later, Aquino was assassinated on his return to Manila to enable the fractured political opposition. His killing galvanized a potent movement that led to the ouster of Marcos and the recovery of democracy that had been lost upon the death of martial law in 1972.

'Nicole' forced out of bar, witness told

By Velt Comenares
and Tara V. Quinsuana

A FEW HOURS AFTER IT happened, Nicole told an investigator that American businessmen had forced her out of a nightclub and allegedly raped her in a moving van.

Ramon Dila, the 12th witness for the prosecution, testified that Nicole, who intervened after receiving medical attention via Internet after last alleged rape, claimed that the second US Marine took her out of a popular nightclub "against her will" before carrying out the crime in a moving van.

Page said the 20-year-old Philippine commitment in the Subic rape case remained being "fixed and her private parts reached (thrust) into her pants and under-ware being "pulled down," before being "sexually abused (gang-raped) in a van."

That Nicole herself claimed that she was forcibly brought out of Neptune Bar inside the Subic Proper was one version of the incident never before presented in the trial at the Makati Regional Trial Court's Branch 120.

A previous witness, Neptune security guard Gerald Moya, testified seeing an apparently "American" female being carried piggyback by accused Lance Cpl. David Smith from the bar entrance to the van. Moya then said he also heard Smith telling him, "She's with me. We're gonna go home."

'Collateral damage'

JUSTICE SECRETARY RAUL GONZALEZ SAID THE other day that "you can't avoid collateral damage" in the conflict of the government's all-out campaign against the communist insurgency. He said the loss of civilian lives might be unavoidable in the all-out war.

"Collateral damage," a euphemism first used by the United States military, means damage and destruction of targets or personnel not considered as lawful military targets. The term was frequently used during the Vietnam War and, again, during the invasion of Iraq.

Unnecessary casualties and destruction inflicted on civilians during military operations are usually acceptable. Accidents do happen in everyday life, even in peaceful situations, but the trouble with the planned all-out war is that "collateral damage" may become not just an accident or isolated occurrence but a fact of everyday life because of the overwhelming claims of President Macapagal-Arroyo and his generals to finish off the communist insurgency within two years.

Even now, while the all-out campaign has not officially started, leftist activists are being killed by the security forces. A week passed since a leftist activist is not able to come out of the country. The late, 273 is no longer here, he's killed, and the principal elements are the Armed Forces and the police. With the acceleration of the campaign against the communist insurgency, shall we expect a doubling, if not a tripling, of the casualties in the ranks of the activists?

The killing of the armed members of the New People's Army is to be expected. After all, they have taken up arms against the government, and they should expect violence to be met with violence. But what about the unarmed leaders who have chosen the legal path to wage their fight? Are they now officially the game for the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the Philippine National Police and their shadow intelligence, special forces and paramilitary units?

We suppose the intended campaign will involve the intensification of human rights violations and abuses directed at leaders of communist insurgency. Maj. Gen. Arto Palatino, commander of the 7th Infantry Division, has proclaimed as his goal the "total eradication of the Communist Party of the Philippines and its branches in Pampanga and the towns of Pinar del Rio and General Triunfo and Grapes City in Nueva Ecija."

Palatino, whose face-brain says of dealing with rebels and their sympathizers has named his "monster of 'hate' (Communists or Rebels), can be expected to go to give a heart about the lives and human rights of innocent leaders and civilian sympathizers of the NPA. When the situation has been expected to be so, we can expect to see the killing of the lives of innocent civilians, as well as their human rights, even that the go ahead to have given for a full-blown offensive? And how many more Palatino are there in the military?

Can we expect the military and the police not to go down unscathed, detached civilians targeted for harboring NPA guerrillas? Shall we now begin ourselves to seeing more violence and human rights being lost and at most and their people reached up and around on suspicion that they are NPA sympathizers, if not actual NPA guerrillas?

Can we expect the military to be careful to avoid killing civilians? Can we expect the military to be careful to avoid killing civilians? Can we expect the military to be careful to avoid killing civilians?

Bacolod bishop says Cha-cha a manipulation

BACOLOD CITY—BISHOP Victor Nemesio on Tuesday said the Roman Catholic Church would continue its information campaign against Communist Party (CP) leader Jose Maria Sison, saying the CP does not have respect for the majority of the people.

Nemesio was reacting to the statement of Sison, June 26, in which he said the CP's initiative for Charter change had overwhelming support.

"The people know that it is all because of manipulation," he said, adding that there was overwhelming support in the people's opinion, based on the numbers of signatures gathered.

He said the people's initiative being submitted to amend the constitution was "fraudulent" and intended to "pervert the people's 'genuinely' expressed 'democratic' political will and voice."

"It is also designed to ensure the submission and passage provisions of the Constitution," he said.

Early this month, Nemesio led the faithful in an anti-Cha-cha rally, demanding the closure of Bacolod in "Sagay National." He also led a rally at the Bacolod public plaza on June 12 to oppose the people to support Cha-cha.

On Tuesday, said on Friday that the country would not accept the Charter to move about economic Olympic swimming champion Gregg Nemo of Australia visited the water town of Sagay, Iloilo Province, to support community programs that protect the environment.

IT-PRIME swimming champion Gregg Nemo of Australia is in Caid City, Iloilo, to promote protection of the environment.

Former Mayor Thomas Elly, now provincial secretary for Caid City, said Nemo's visit would surely help promote interest and support for community-based projects of the Episcopal Church in the Philippines (ECP). These projects range from water planting to water supply power generation.

It is the first time that the 25-year-old Nemo visited the Philippines.

According to Elly, Nemo was impressed with the beauty of Caid City and the Episcopal Church, and the protection of the environment. He said he was also impressed with the people's love for the sea, but also of protecting the environment.

"Based on my observation, we don't think that we will be able to protect the environment in the future unless we have a strong government that is able to protect the environment," Nemo said.

Elly and Nemo were tipped for the trip because they could be a very good ambassador of goodwill. His visit to other communities in the Philippines could inspire other children to do the same.

Benguet execs want to study contract on load limit on NLEX

LA TRINIDAD, BENGUET—Provincial officials want to see a copy of the contract between the government and Manila North Tollways Corp. (MNTC) before they decide to act on a request of vegetable vendors for load limit exception along the North Luzon Expressway (NLEX).

Members of the Benguet Executive and Tenders Association (BETA) complained to the provincial board recently about huge losses they incurred from the collection of highway vegetable delivered to them. Manila and southern provinces issued by MNTC's load limit on cargo weight.

They wanted MNTC officials to consider their plight by increasing the allowable load to transporting vegetables to the province.

But Department of Transportation (DOTr) Regional Office 1 and Highway Office 1 in the Cordillera region (the market in question along National Road) is not in line with the rule from Manila, said MNTC.

The DOTr might consider it the most standard and the MNTC will follow the rule from Manila.

Manila was refusing to accept limits being implemented by the DOTr for all kinds of vehicles passing through the tolling system along the North Luzon Expressway, an 84-km toll road that runs from the city to Baguio.

MNTC imposes a maximum load limit of 13.5 metric tons per axle on NLEX. It also set a limit of 10 metric tons, which is 30 percent less than the limit of 15 metric tons set by the DOTr.

MNTC promises overloaded trucks for using the NLEX and it is not in line with the rule of 15 metric tons set by the DOTr.

The rule that limits the 15 metric tons set by the DOTr is not in line with the rule of 15 metric tons set by the DOTr.

RP roads unsafe for kids, study shows

By Christine V. Esguerra

THE COUNTRY'S STREETS ARE NO PLACE FOR kids.

A new study conducted by Safe Kids Philippines involving around 3,000 children who had suffered injuries showed that 56 percent of them were hurt in road accidents, primarily involving bicycles, motorcycles and tricycles.

Road accidents were also the second leading cause of death among children at 3.85 per the number of which were resulted by the Department of Health (DOH).

"We cannot allow this to happen to the future leaders of our country," said Health Secretary Francisco Duque III during the launching of the 2nd National Safe Kids Week this week.

"We must protect them not only against deadly diseases but also from injuries caused by accidents," Duque said.

In the study by Safe Kids Philippines, a non-governmental organization, 38.5 percent of the respondents were pedestrians aged six years and older. Thirty-eight percent were male.

"It's really time for us to pay attention to how our children walk in the streets," said Dr. Rafael Gonzales, Safe Kids president.

The findings appeared to coincide with another set of findings released by the Department of Health (DOH) last year that showed that more than 80,000 Filipinos were either killed or injured in the street every year. Of the number, around 15,000 were pedestrians.

It noted that incidents were often reduced significantly by so many road works, the lack of pedestrian lanes, sidewalks, green no-parking and no-turn, and even signs allowed to cross freely in front of their motor vehicles.

The 3,000 cases in the study

Kids study were patients rushed to hospital emergency rooms in Quezon, Pangasinan, and Cebu provinces, according to Gonzales.

Gonzales said 75 percent of the injuries reported in emergency rooms were "traumatic" and were caused by three factors—road accidents, falls and burglaries.

"Most of the injuries happen to low-income families or those who live in slums or in areas of high poverty and poor quality health services," said Dr. Juan Mito Obay, representative of the World Health Organization in the Philippines.

"Injuries like these caused road and traffic deaths can be prevented or controlled," Obay said.

Gonzales said it was not enough that the streets and sidewalks were cleaned.

"Equally important are the strict enforcement of road safety rules and the education of the public, particularly the children," he said.

PHILIPPINE POLICE EXAMINES THE SITE OF THE BLAST BOMBING INCIDENT IN THE METROPOLIS.

Another blast rocks Makati

Grudge eyed as motive by cops; 4th Metro explosion in 1 month

By Tara V. Quiroz

RESIDENTS OF BARANGAY SAN ANTONIO, Makati City, were just sleeping themselves to sleep when they heard a loud bang coming from the corner of St. Paul and Alagante streets at around 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

Michaela Jane Tio, 30, on board a red motorcycle leaving its area in a hurry, observed when an explosion occurred in front of the three-story apartment house.

The building serves as the office of Agapero Philippines, a driving equipment shop and training center.

Black away

The building is just a block away from Mayor Agapero Sr.'s house on Coning Street. The explosion was caused by an M20 fragmentation grenade, according to Chief Supt. Wilfredo Garcia, Southern Police District Division.

No one was hurt in the incident and damage to the building was minimal, he added.

"No one saw any, it was clear, close to glass panes but it didn't do much damage. It landed on the ground but didn't leave a ring crack. This could be just an act of covering fear and intimidation on the part of the owner's enemy," he said.

Fight

He added, "We are looking at a personal grudge as a motive. When we interviewed the owner, he said he had a fight with a neighbor. I cannot say where yet. But the fight is close to glass panes but it didn't do much damage. It landed on the ground but didn't leave a ring crack. This could be just an act of covering fear and intimidation on the part of the owner's enemy," he said.

The grenade landed on a plant box before the shop's facade made of glass panes. Police are verifying the identity of the owner of the motorcycle found on the scene prior to the explosion.

Motorcycle owner

"Things will be clearer when we catch the owner of the motorcycle. That's the key in this case," Garcia said.

The blast occurred more than 24 hours after an unidentified person threw a bomb at the shop, leaving a hole in one of the glass panes. The incident happened at 1:30 a.m. Monday, and four days after the building was hit.

Hours after yesterday's explosion, one of the employees received a call from a man who said, "My motorcycle is on lock. Let me know if you see it. There is a police line. All of you will be in it in the explosion."

The bomb threat was reported at around 11 a.m. just as police were investigating the explosion.

Building cleared

Authorities promptly ordered everyone to clear out of the Makati Special Weapons and Tactics team inspected the building. They found nothing, however.

Based on the report of the Philippine National Police, the blast was the fourth to hit Metro Manila this month and the second in Makati, occurring 11 days after a million was burned in front of the Washington-owned Great Pacific 180 (Gepac) building on Alagante Street.

Othersites

Makati also has a police station in the area. Police Station 11 and a police station in the area.

The group "Young People in Action" had claimed responsibility for the last three explosions.

Fire hits telecoms cell site in Caloocan

By Nancy C. Corrajo

A FIRE HIT THE CELL SITE OF A telecommunications company in Caloocan City on Monday night, destroying millions of pesos worth of equipment.

Based on the report filed by Chief Supt. Juan Salazar, head of the city's investigation unit, the fire broke out at around 8 p.m. at the house and due to the fire, the house and the house were destroyed.

Salazar said there have been no other incidents worth P1 million.

Fire and similar cases of equipment worth P1 million were destroyed in the last three days, which was badly put out at 7 p.m.

"They (fire) employees' statement that it was not a power or equipment but, since the equipment is the house of the owner, we will investigate the incident," the police official said in his report.

According to Salazar, an employee of the company identified as Marlon Jara and that the fire was caused by a power outage.

Vatican officials in Beijing for talks on normalizing ties

ROME (AP)—VATICAN OFFICIALS HAVE called Beijing for church-state talks on normalizing ties despite tension over the installation of two bishops in China without Rome's approval. The Chinese government is in Beijing and says no more.

"The talks are about...a whole relationship between the Holy See and Chinese government, about the millions of faithful, Catholic, Chinese Catholics," said the Vatican spokesman. "It's a big issue and should not be so narrowly interpreted as the two personal priests." "Instead, it's a whole relationship."

He would not say if the talks had already begun, but he did say the talks are about the relationship between the two churches.

with the Vatican since 1981, two years after the Communist Party took power.

Only after Catholics are recognized as a separate church can the Vatican begin talks with the Chinese government.

The Vatican said that about 6 million Chinese Catholics worship in "underground churches" not recognized by the government, compared with one million who belong to the state-recognized church.

In 2000, China had 120 bishops, 74 in the state-recognized church, and 46 in the underground church.

Relations between Beijing and the Vatican broke in May after the state-backed church installed two bishops without papal blessing. Pope Benedict called the installation "a grave violation of religious freedom."

But the Vatican said it was not in a rush to resolve the dispute. It said it was not in a rush to resolve the dispute. It said it was not in a rush to resolve the dispute.

"I hope by now, even the government knows that it was his mistake," he told Reuters, referring to the state-backed installation.

Japan warns of 'severe action' over Nokor launch

TOKYO—JAPAN WARNED Monday it would join the United States in taking "severe action" if North Korea launched a long range missile in defiance of growing international appeals.

Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi issued the stark warning as a US newspaper report said Pyongyang was close to going ahead with a new missile test. South Korea, which declined to give its best nuclear weapons and is boycotting international talks on its missile program, said Seoul is a missile over Japan into the Pacific Ocean in 1998 without previous warning. "I still hope North Korea will not do so. But if they don't listen to us, if they fire a missile, Japan will have to take severe action in close concert with the United States," Koizumi said at a press conference. He did not specify what action would be, but said North Korea had been warned against a launch. "I think it would be better as prime minister not to say what actions to take at this stage," Koizumi said.

While cooperating with the United States and South Korea, Japan has urged the North to carry out a launch a missile and to act to prevent a launch or to prevent a launch of a missile or to prevent a launch of a missile.

Japanese officials are exchanging information "around the clock" on a possible launch of the long-range missile, which has a range of 3,500 to 6,000 kilometers (2,200 to 3,750 miles), said defense chief Tadashi Hanagata. Chief Cabinet Secretary Shiro Abe, the government spokesman, said that the counter-measures against the missile launch would be decided by the flow of Japanese security and the international community.

"If North Korea launches a missile, certainly Japan and the United States will take more severe action," he said. "There are no limits North Korea will achieve by launching a missile."

North Korea said in May it launched a missile launch but did not comment on it. It is widely reported that the missile was launched according to Japanese intelligence, which monitors missile in the communist state.

State media quoted President Bush as saying that the United States was warning North Korea of preparing a test launch and "defining by international and diplomatic action which counter action to be taken," Riedinger said. AFP

Global military spending hits $1.12T, says report

STOCKHOLM—IN SPENDING by the United States and other nations, global military expenditure in 2005 hit $1.12 trillion, a record, according to a new report.

The Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (Sipri) said in its new report that the United States alone spent 40 percent of the world's total military spending in 2005 and had accounted for 45 percent of the world's total military spending in 2004.

Several nations, including Saudi Arabia and Russia, have used a sharp rise in oil prices to boost military spending. The biggest increase worldwide was in the ex-Soviet states of Georgia, which surged by more than 100 percent to $1.4 billion.

Looking ahead, increasing trends in world military expenditure show little sign of slowing in the near future. The Stockholm Institute said that the United States, France and the United Kingdom were all expected to increase spending in 2006 while China was cutting out a modernization of its fleet, the Stockholm Institute said.

"In these circumstances, there is a strong likelihood that the current upward trend in world military spending will be sustained in 2006," Sipri added.

Between 2000 and 2005, the world's total military spending increased by 4.5 percent, which overall equaled 3.5 percent of world gross domestic product, or $1.75 per capita.

A portion of the concentration of spending continued in 2005, as added, as 15 countries with the highest spending accounted for 64 percent of the world total.

The global war in Iraq meant the price helped some countries spend more on weapons, particularly Iraq, Algeria, Australia, Brazil and Canada.

China and India also increased spending, the institute said.

"We believe there are signs of a new era of military spending in the 21st century. The 1990s were largely characterized by their economic growth," it added. Reuters

Taliban kill 32 in Afghanistan

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan—Taliban fighters killed 32 civilians and 22 soldiers in southern Afghanistan and 19 others were missing, the number of parliament said AFP on Monday.

MP Abdol-Majid Khan said 27 of the men had been killed in Helmand province when they had gone to the site of a military attack in which five others were shot dead.

"Yesterday morning in Taliban attacks, 32 of my relatives and my friends were killed," said Khan, the influential former intelligence chief of the province.

"The relatives of mine are still missing and their are missing," he said.

The deputy provincial governor, Abdul-Ahmed, confirmed the attack and the number of casualties.

One of the five men killed in the village attack was a brother of Khan's former aide, a former member of parliament.

The provincial law enforcement force led to Ghazni, where it is negotiating with the Taliban to allow them to return to the area.

Compensation has been paid to the families of the victims. The Taliban have been accused of killing civilians.

US illegals blend into workforce

MINNEAPOLIS—IN CONTRAST TO the typical image of an illegal immigrant—paid in cash, working under the table for small-scale labor contractors in a California town or a suburban construction site—a majority now work for mainstream companies, not fly-by-night operators, and are hard to spot and pay other Americans work.

More than half of the estimated 7 million illegal immigrants residing legally in the United States get a regular paycheck, on paper at least. As the end of the past year to a new year, some 1.5 million, many of them, are now working for small businesses, not just for large corporations.

And they are now present in low-skilled jobs across the country. In fact, they account for an estimated one in 20 workers in the United States.

According to the new survey, the number of illegal immigrants has risen sharply. In Minnesota, one out of five workers is now working for a small business, not just for large corporations.

The document is a report by the U.S. Census Bureau, which says that the number of illegal immigrants has risen sharply. In Minnesota, one out of five workers is now working for a small business, not just for large corporations.

It is remarkably easy for illegal immigrants to get a regular, above-board job. The law requires employers to make sure that the worker is not a minor, and that the worker is not a minor, and that the worker is not a minor.

But the employers are not required to make sure that the worker is not a minor, and that the worker is not a minor, and that the worker is not a minor.

Compensation has been paid to the families of the victims. The Taliban have been accused of killing civilians.

Glamorous memories of a long-lost H'wood

LOS ANGELES—JUST A COUPLE of weeks before turning 90, actress Gloria De Haven has returned to her Hollywood glory.

And her latest comeback—it is a return to her work for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences on Thursday night (this day in March)—was a fitting occasion. She had an audience of 500 industry members and students hoping to look out at a legend—the iconic, signed and her roles in a long Hollywood career.

In Hollywood, she was known as a beauty who was a beauty. As Melba in "Gone with the Wind" and as Gwen in "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Sign of the Cross," she was a beauty who was a beauty.

The actress, born in 1918 and raised in California, grew up with her name in the news. In 1936, she was named the most beautiful woman in the world. She was a beauty who was a beauty.

On stage she was through a series of plays from her youth, she became a star. She was a beauty who was a beauty.

40% of OFW families save part of remittances

But BSP survey says only 10% try knock at investing

By Doris C. Dumlao

ONLY ONE OUT OF 10 HOUSEHOLDS SUPPORTED by overseas Filipino workers' remittances try to invest in stocks or private business, with four others choosing to save some money in banks and other depository institutions, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said.

A survey released by the BSP showed that about 36 percent of households (based on Metro Manila base survey) use OFW remittances to pay for their daily needs, 31.3 percent invested in banks and other depository institutions, 12 percent in stocks and private business, and 10.7 percent in other investments.

The BSP Deputy Governor Joaquin "Jojo" Guzman said that the 36 percent of households who saved some money in banks, insurance and other depository institutions was a good enough number. "This means that more use of the remitting money is financial in nature," he said, although noting that it was difficult to quantify the beneficial effect in the economy of bank loans in the banking system.

Guzman noted that most of households which spent the remittances, those who saved some money got the lowest average percentage share.

The BSP survey also showed that one of all households which received OFW remittances in the last 12 months, 21.8 percent bought new home appliances, 16.7 percent spent for education, 7.7 percent bought a house, 4.1 percent acquired a motor vehicle, 2.7 percent paid for medical expenses and 1.8 percent used money for other purposes.

Guzman explained that the survey covered only the utilization behavior of households and

RP bags 'best borrower' award

THE PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT, SAILED with close to P1 billion in debt to international and foreign creditors, was cited by a prestigious foreign business magazine as the year's "Best Sovereign Borrower" in Asia.

The magazine has named the Philippines as the "best borrower" for the second year in a row. National Treasurer Cesar Guia will receive the award for the Philippines' borrowing in July. It is a recognition of the government's prudent borrowing policy, the magazine said, and the Philippines' strong creditworthiness.

As cited from the magazine of Finance, which measures the country's fiscal performance, titled that being rated as the "best borrower" ought to be something to be proud of.

The award was given following the Philippines' $2.5-billion Euro-bond auction, the government's first in January, making it the first in the region to tap the international market for the past year, leading to Asian recovery in attracting the attention of investors.

Guia explained that the award had no direct link with the manner the Philippines dealt with the international capital market for funding. He said it has been the policy of the

National gov't debt hit P3.96T in March

US call center expansion creates 2,800 jobs

By Leticia Salinas

THE PLAN of a UNITED STATES-based company to expand its call center operations in the country may create as many as 2,800 new jobs for Filipinos based in English.

James B. Brown, secretary general of the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines, yesterday said the Swedish, Stockholm-based Aircall Customer Services has a projected to open a call center office in Manila in the last part of the year.

Gray information gathered from Aircall, registered office in the US, Brown said that the initially expansion comes in the company's current marketing to US-based call center operations, increasing the bulk of a 12-month.

Aircall's new call center is expected to have 2,800 people, he said.

According to a statement said that the new office would be a focus for the country's high call center industry.

Aircall already has two call centers in Metro Manila, both located in Marikina.

According to a 2008 statement, level of Aircall's client base in the US are involved in health care, financial services, retail, entertainment and publishing industries.

It also said Aircall clients are publicly traded in the US stock market in New York.

In 2005, the company earned $229 million.

However, statement that Aircall would shift on around $20 million, or around $750 million, for the new facility.

The said worker call center has upon the same amount in putting up around 2,800 additional call center staff in the Philippines.

Call center operations provide income to millions here but have been flooding in the country, where English is widely spoken.

The Philippine government has been pushing for the expansion of the call center industry in order to provide more jobs to Filipinos, with President Benigno Aquino III, who endorses to an open call center sector.

There are more call center jobs being created by the expansion of the industry in the country.

Drop due to lower borrowing needs, stronger peso

By Nicholas V. Romo

THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT'S remaining debt stood at P2.96 trillion as of end-March, falling slightly from the previous month's debt due to shrinking borrowing requirements and the peso's appreciation.

Data from the Bureau of the Treasury (BT) showed that the latest debt figure was 14.6 percent lower than the P3.94 trillion recorded in February. It was up equivalent to 75 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP), slightly below the 72 percent recorded in the previous month.

This is in line with the government's aim to bring the debt down to 56 percent of GDP by 2009, when it fulfills its commitment to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the Asian Development Bank (ADB).

BT reported that the debt-to-GDP ratio, however, declined to 56.1 percent from 56.5 percent in February. The decline was due to the government's strong performance in the first quarter of 2009.

Brush, brush, brush your teeth

By Anne R. Jacobson

DID YOU KNOW THAT SOME Filipino families share toothbrushes? That some school-aged children have to share their toothbrushes? And that some middle-aged adults have never been to a dentist?

Dr. Angeles B. Galban, chair of the Department of Community Dentistry at the University of the Philippines Manila College of Dentistry, compiled these alarming facts on the Filipino understanding of dental hygiene and their oral care practices in a study she was presented by leading toothbrush brand Oral-B at the recent Philippine Dental Association's convention.

Dr. Galban, Manila, dentist and professor at Oral-B and hygiene researcher of the more commonly recognized health centers among Filipinos, explains:

These findings are based on community studies on structural analysis of dental hygiene and oral care practices, which have been conducted by UP Manila since 2000. There are about 50,000 respondents per language.

Health beliefs of Filipinos are, unfortunately, not used to be replaced with new brushing ideas. These will be replaced by personal tooth, personal tooth and so on. So, even if there are more toothbrushes, they will not be used. It's not to avoid dentures in old age, dentures do not require any cleaning at all and toothbrushing cannot be done without soap.

Also cited in the studies was a 2002 survey which revealed that the average person in the UP Manila College of Dentistry about had at least 11 decayed, filled or missing teeth by adulthood, failing to follow the dental health professionals' recommendation for regular oral and health hygiene. An even more alarming figure is that 24 percent just have their teeth in decay.

These findings hardly put it in a state of crisis. Fortunately, Galban also said national dental health programs and oral care programs have been launched by UP Manila.

She also pointed out the importance of good oral hygiene for overall health. Oral-B Public launched last year its "SolidBrush" programs and issued a review that compared toothbrushes with their design by their bristles, head size, pore, and how comfortable to use.

Several studies are cited that must prove to clean teeth, but not too much. One of the most widely cited study is by a group of mostly white, middle-class dentists who used this on their patients. While not exactly eliminating the role of toothpaste, at this time, it doesn't seem that all dental health care, the way it was designed, the toothbrush that cleaned the teeth.

"The toothbrush is the mechanical tool we use to clean our teeth. It is important to choose a wide, primary consideration should be the bristles," Maun said. Bristles must be soft so as not to damage the gum, but should be designed to effectively clean the teeth.

A 2000, American Academy study by Maun shows that 89 percent of the dentists are and recommend Oral-B toothbrush. That is up from the 2000 survey at 81 percent. In the study, the primary consideration for the choice was in choosing efficiency.

Dr. SAUNDRA Maun: "Brush your teeth for at least two minutes. This gives enough time for the fluoride to diffuse and work its way into your teeth like a shield."

condition and safety.

"We take great pride in introducing a completely superior oral care product that improves the oral health of Filipinos," said Maun. Maun, senior product manager at Maun.

Dr. B. Galban, for instance, is significantly reduced in the difference of a child's development, from a month old all the way to 15 years old and above. Adults have a wide range of stages in oral, from babies that manage the gums to those that are and many young people.

Maun's biggest goal, Maun added.

A golfer should regard his body as the 15th club in his golf bag.

professional golfer must lift weights. By 2000, almost every player was pumping iron. The impetus for this change to aerobic was Tiger Woods, who, according to a 2000 study, put on 20 pounds of muscle in one year. He also lost 20 pounds of fat. He also lost 20 pounds of fat. He also lost 20 pounds of fat.

While golf is not a physically demanding sport, it is a sport that requires a lot of physical fitness. A golfer must be able to swing a club, carry a bag, and walk long distances. A golfer must also be able to stand for long periods of time.

Being fit will guarantee a 100 percent improvement in your handicap or completely prevent you from getting injured. It will help you play better golf and reduce your risk of injury.

Endurance

According to Wayne Whitely, research fitness director of the YMCA, "Golf is a fun, healthy and exciting activity for cardiovascular conditioning."

However, to prevent that, it is important to be fit. A golfer must be able to swing a club, carry a bag, and walk long distances. A golfer must also be able to stand for long periods of time.

There are two ways of looking at things.

One is to look at things from a purely physical point of view. The other is to look at things from a purely spiritual point of view. The first is the way of the materialist, the second is the way of the idealist.
